Students will choose from placements with respected organizations in southern India to work with the differentially disabled, older adults, the sick, and/or impoverished women. In this course, students will learn village development methods, which include the inner growth of people as well as the outer development of community. Students will learn directly from their host organization about employing effective techniques to address social problems such as poverty, healthcare, illiteracy, and disabilities.

Application Deadline: MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 21, 2015
